

Smart Scheduling

Schedule Bidding

Managing the schedule bidding process using bid slips or spreadsheets is labor-intense and prone to errors. Departmental rules, labor laws, and employee preferences are often overlooked. Using a centralized solution like Workforce Management PLUS to manage your schedule bidding process saves significant administrative time and ensures that all schedules are fairly awarded.

Increase Schedule Bidding Efficiencies

With its highly configurable rules engine, Workforce Management PLUS automates bidding processes based on your policy rules. Varies types of rules are supported, such as the types of job classes that can bid, the number of rounds employees can submit re-bids, the number of bids submitted per round, and the priority level preference if multiple bids are allowed. Available schedules can be offered agency-wide, to specific job classes or groups. Schedules can also be restricted by bid types to comply with union policies.

Improve Bidding Communications

With Workforce Management PLUS, employees automatically receive notifications regarding schedule bidding periods and can only view the schedules they are qualified to fill. Bidding search filters are used to view and bid on available schedule assignments based on organizations, shifts, and rotational schedule selections. Once preferred schedules are submitted, personnel can track the process throughout the bidding period.

After the bidding submission periods have closed online screens are used to view the status of bids awards. Awarded schedules are saved on shift rosters, in employee calendars, and on their shift records.

Automate or Assign Manually - Your Choice

If your agency prefers to use the automatic award process, PLUS will auto-approve bids based on your criteria -- such as seniority or rank. As an alternative, authorized personnel may choose to use online tools for manually processing bids based on your rules. Either way, once bidding has been finalized employees are notified and each employee's bidding details are saved for auditing purposes. It's simple, fair, and efficient.
